Personal Statement

As a former mathematics degree student, I studied how to code on a very basic level and upon finishing my studies, I wanted to further my knowledge on how to code, which brought me to Northcoders, a well-connected, industry leading coding bootcamp. The bootcamp strengthened my ability to code collaboratively and individually, and furthered my problem-solving skills. I have the fundamental skills of a junior full-stack developer and I am looking to progress in the software development field and look to become a senior developer.
